Speaker: Jan Hansen

Educating For Food Allergies, LLC (EFFA) created to assist schools and families as they work to successfully manage food allergies at school.

When a child is first diagnosed with a life-threatening food allergy, parents are faced with the challenge of keeping their child safe in ways they had not previously imagined. Schools look for ways in which to keep these students safe, while also promoting an atmosphere which allows the students to thrive in all aspects of their education. In both instances, the task of gathering and assimilating information to facilitate the success of this goal is often a difficult and overwhelming task.
